

TO PASS THE TIME

Elsie J. (Titus) Martin

When I woke
At the crack of dawn
I tried very hard
To stifle a yawn

If I think
Perhaps I can recall
What I wanted
From the mall

While waiting
For the coffee to brew
I thought of many things
I needed to do

Through every store
I did look
I finally found
Just the right book

I had become very hungry
Overnight
And decided I needed
To eat a bite

On the way back
I took a walk through the park
Making sure I was home
Well before dark

Now I'd better
Be on my way
To do all the things
Planned for the day

No, this isn't
The last refrain
For tomorrow
I will do it all over again
